Elements has many features designed to help professional photographers edit and enhance images. Photoshop Elements has a wide range of features to edit images from babies to weddings. Photoshop Elements has a fixed size icon for every command and feature. The fixed icons look like icons in an app drawer. Photoshop has a lot more options and they take up space on your desktop. Elements is designed to be small and efficient. It only has a few options and the original icons. You can easily access the commands you use every day by clicking on the little icons. However, this simplicity can affect your efficiency as you have to know what icons mean so you can do the commands at the press of a button. Photoshop Elements is a free graphics editing software for your editing needs. If you are struggling to find great images online and need help getting started, you can download free content packs from photoshopusersite.com. For more advanced editing needs, you can upgrade to Photoshop (which can be cheaper than Adobe Creative Cloud) or to Adobe Lightroom. There is a cheaper version of Elements called Photoshop Express. List of Photoshop Elements features The next two sections will list all of the commands and features in Photoshop Elements. Make sure you learn the right mouse button for the commands and features in Photoshop Elements as you will use this all day long. Note that many features and the functions below are only available in the paid version. Creating an image There are many ways of creating images in Photoshop Elements. You can create images by using the painting tool or by using the selection tool. You can also use the Gradient tool to apply color effects or borders to your images. You can edit and rotate or move your images. You can print your images. Or, if you use your image as a background, you can fit it to any size, or you can specify the size and aspect ratio. Let's take a look at each feature. The Process Panel The Process Panel is where all your settings for your image are. This is the most comprehensive way to work with your image. You will use the Process Panel for applying effects and correcting and colour correcting all aspects of your image. Here are all the basic tools for working in the Process Panel: Image Size: You have an option to select either Standard or Pixel Size. This option affects the size of your picture. Image copyright Getty Images Theresa May has said Islamic State would not be defeated as long as it had safe havens in Syria and Iraq. In a speech to the Women2Win conference in London, the prime minister said tackling IS could be a long-term project. She said she would not give "short shrift" to the problem, but warned not enough was being done. Ministers announced plans to tackle abuse of child fighters in Syria and Iraq, as well as the gangs that capture women and children fleeing the conflict. 'Responsible mothers' The conference was organised by the Royal United Services Institute to mark the 75th anniversary of the end of World War Two. It brought together politicians, defence, humanitarian and development experts as well as women involved with help in war zones including Afghanistan, the Syrian and Iraqi conflicts, and women involved in peacebuilding. Mrs May also called on the international community to help fund the work of "responsible mothers" in the Middle East, working to rebuild communities in which many have been displaced by war. She said: "So long as IS have the safe havens they have in Syria and Iraq, we will not defeat them. "We must therefore make sure we keep the pressure on, and not only defeat IS militarily but make sure we do everything we can to deny them the safe havens they need to perpetrate their murderous crimes. "And it will take a long, long time, and it will involve a lot of effort but I am absolutely certain that it will be successful." 'Unacceptable in any way' Mrs May also refused to accept that British and European aid was not working as well as necessary, saying resources had been "subtracted", adding that spending could be increased. She said: "Of course I am worried about the amount of money that is going to Nigeria for instance. I think that is something that should be looked at... we don't have to have war on one part of the planet and poverty on another part of the planet. "It is unacceptable in any way. And as we look at these problems we must all be taking the view that we will be able to solve this problem by 2035 or 2030." Top of the agenda She also said many of the problems in Africa were "sustained and abetted by humanitarian workers" who "cannot walk away" from a situation that is

Q: How to make UIActivityIndicatorView animate when app return to foreground? I have a UIActivityIndicatorView in the AppDelegate's application:didFinishLaunchingWithOptions method. I want to make it animate when app returns to foreground. I tried this: `[[NSRunLoop currentRunLoop] addTimer:timer forMode:NSRunLoopCommonModes]; [timer addObserver:self selector:@selector(signalIndicatorMoving:) name:UIActivityIndicatorViewActivityDidChangeNotification object:nil];` but it doesn't work. A: You can do the same thing by using NSNotificationCenter. Add this in AppDelegate `NSNotificationCenter *nc = [NSNotificationCenter defaultCenter];`
